FIGHTING BEGINS AT THE DIETZ FARM THIS MORNING

SPIT OF FIREARMS HEARD IN THE WOODS SURROUNDING CABIN.

MANY DEPUTIES WOUNDED

Many Friends of Besieged Man Hastening to His Aid—Myra Dietz Better—Local Men Disarm.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Winter, Wis., Oct. 5.—The spit of firearms has been heard since early morning about the besieged Dietz cabin at Cameron Dam, according to reports here at noon today.

It is reported two deputies were wounded by the return fire from Dietz.

Armed men who have come to the defense of Dietz are reported in the woods near the cabin.

Start Reinforcements.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 5.—A paper in the hands of H. C. Schneider, real estate dealer and former city official, today also the signature of thirty-five St. Paul citizens who had themselves to fight for John Dietz, the Cameron Dam defender. It is expected that sixty names will be signed by night, and the small army will start for Winter.

Want Peace.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—Dr. Geo. Klotzschmidt and three others are on their way to Winter to confer with Sheriff Madden to seek a peaceful solution of the Dietz affair. Falling in with Klotzschmidt will at once notify his friends here and thirty-five armed men will go to the defense of Dietz.

Seize Begins.

Winter, Oct. 5.—Reports reaching here this morning from the Dietz stronghold on Thornapple river are that forty-three deputies under Roy Van Alstyne, crack shot, and sworn enemy of Dietz, are now within one hundred yards of the cabin in the edge of the clearing. Rifle shots are being fired and the siege has started.

Were Beaten Back.

According to a story brought in today deputy sheriffs last night attempted to approach the Dietz cabin, but were met with volley shots. The deputies immediately returned.

Was Turned Back.

W. W. Wadlington, former friend of Dietz, and Frank Taylor, member of the town board, started on a peace mission to Dietz but were turned back by deputies. It is believed a bloody battle is at hand.

Deputies Firm.

Madison, Oct. 5.—Governor Davidson will pay no attention to the hundreds of letters and telegrams asking that he take steps in the Dietz case. In an interview this afternoon the governor declared Sheriff Madden was only doing his sworn duty and the law-abiding citizens of Northern Wisconsin should favor the efforts of the officer. "There will be no state intervention in the case unless to help the officers of the law, was the final word.

Starts North.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 5.—Col. Oliver G. Munson, private secretary to Gov. Davidson, and Attorney General Frank L. Gilbert left at 1 o'clock this afternoon for Winter to investigate the conditions in the Dietz case with a view to possible executive action.

Due To Disasters.

This step is understood to be the result of the many telegrams and letters of indignation against the recent shooting of the Dietz children by Sheriff Madden's deputies.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 5.—J. B. Jenkins of Chippewa Falls, newspaper reporter and at present a student at Lawrence college, this morning received a letter from John Dietz, defender of Cameron Dam, in which Dietz tells how he narrowly escaped being shot to death by the deputies when his children were shot.

Will Seek Daughter.

Dietz says he expects to be busy for the next two days harvesting his crops. He states that the sheriff and his deputies think that Dietz must have been off, but he can get his mail all right. After harvesting his crops Dietz will start out to recover his daughter, who was shot and is in an Ashland hospital at present.

Myra Dietz Better.

Ashland, Wis., Oct. 5.—Myra Dietz is reported greatly improved by attending physicians today, but is not yet out of danger. It is held that the bullet will have to be probed for as soon as her physical condition will permit. The infection, although serious, is not necessarily fatal, say the doctors. Deputies today allowed people to enter the hospital after they were sure none were John Dietz.

Local People Interested.

Many Janesville people are familiar with the locale of the Dietz drama or are personally interested for one reason or another in the events which are transpiring there. Red Cedar, Rice, Spider, Round, Grindstone, and Choteau lakes are all located in that region—some of them not so very many miles west and north of the Thornapple river and the city of Winter. This latter town boasts of 3,000 inhabitants and a three-story hotel—the Giblein—which accommodates during a single season hundreds of the sorters on their way to or from the various cupping places. A. A. Russell, who has been going to the Rice lake region for twenty years, knows Dietz' brother—the one who used to be a sheriff—very well, and says that he is a man of high intelligence and capacity—anything but a rude backwoodsman.

Sheriff Is Known Here.

Frank McNamara, son of H. L. McNamara, was district attorney of Sawyer county when the trouble at the Thornapple dam began, but resigned his position last June and moved to Chippewa Falls. During his term of office the people were about evenly divided in their attitude for or against Dietz. Sheriff Madden, while on his way to Waupun with prisoners, came to Janesville with Mr. McNamara last spring and spent the evening here.

Situation Exaggerated?

Those hereabouts who are familiar with the country and situation are inclined to discount the newspaper stories all the way from 50 to 90 per cent. E. H. Peterson, who leaves for the Round lake region with some prospective land buyers tomorrow night does not expect to find Winter and the neighboring wilderness under martial law with "dead lines" armed scouting parties, field guns, and ambulances. He thinks that Winter will present nothing more terrifying than a few newspaper correspondents taking their "high ones" in the bar of the Giblein and miscellaneous reservation Indians reeling down the main thoroughfares. Harry McNamara deprecates the popular indignation over the shooting of the girl. She is the best shot in the family and from his viewpoint it was no necessary to deal with her in a decisive fashion as with any of the other law-breakers. The sum total of local opinion is that the officers in Sawyer county do not want Dietz very badly; that they can get him when they do want him; and that the larger proportion of the reports being sent out from Winter are "bunk" pure and simple.

6,000 CHILDREN SING RESPONSES

TO SOLEMN PONTIFICAL MASS AT NEW YORK

THREE CARDINALS ASSIST

In Impressive Ceremonies Attending Consecration Of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, Oct. 5.—With princes of the church, bishops, monsignors and scores of priests as active participants or interested spectators in the impressive ceremonies of a solemn pontifical mass, of which Cardinal Gibbons was the celebrant, the three days ceremonies attending the consecration of St. Patrick's Cathedral began this morning.

The ceremonies brought together an assemblage of the recent Eucharistic Congress is less notable than that which the sessions of the recent Eucharistic Congress in Montreal, heading the list of participants were Cardinal Vannutelli, Papal Legate, Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, and Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore. Among the many other distinguished prelates were Archbishop Farley of New York, O'Connell of Boston, Ryan of Philadelphia, Gleason of St. Louis and numerous bishops from various parts of the United States and Canada.

The ceremonies began with the consecration at 10 o'clock this morning. One thousand persons composed the procession, which moved around the great cathedral before taking part in the solemn service. The procession was headed by acolytes, chorists and the diocesan clergy, who were followed by the monsignors, bishops, archbishops and cardinals, all clad in the gorgeous vestments of their respective offices. The officers of the mass brought up the rear, headed by the archiepiscopal cross bearer.

The great cathedral had been elaborately decorated for the exercises of the week. The Fifth Avenue front of the stately edifice was made bright by countless yards of bunting of the purple and white, which was tastefully festooned above the large entrances. The pulpits, railings and other parts of the interior were hung with laurel wreaths. The altar itself was draped in red.

A detail of one hundred police was required to keep in check the enormous crowds that congregated in the vicinity of the cathedral almost at dawn of day, anxious to obtain at least a glimpse of the eminent participants in the ceremonies, even though deprived of the opportunity to witness the ceremony itself. St. Patrick's has a seating capacity of 15,000, but it is estimated that nearly 20,000 persons were crowded into the spacious edifice, being admitted only by ticket. In the congregation were many specially invited civil officers, members of the vestries of the local churches, officers of Catholic societies and other.

Cardinal Gibbons officiated at the high pontifical mass, which began at 11 o'clock and was designed to be the most important and imposing of all functions of the three days program. Cardinals Vannutelli and Logue were seated in the sanctuary, where episcopal thrones, elaborately draped, had been arranged on either side. Archbishop Falconio, Archbishop Gleason, who preaches the consecration sermon, Bishop Gabriele of Ogdensburg, Bishop Heenan of Springfield, Mass., Bishop McManis of Brooklyn, Bishop Fitzmaurice of Erie, Bishop Monaghan of Washington, and the many other visiting prelates were seated on either side of the two thrones, while the parish priests occupied seats reserved for them in the body of the church.

The music at the mass was especially fine, being rendered with orchestral accompaniment and a large choir. The mass music of J. C. Tugener was given complete for the first time. A first performance was also given of the offertory, "Jerusalem, Surge," by P. A. Yon, organist of St. Francis Xavier Church in this city.

After the pontifical mass the clergy proceeded to the Diocesan House in Madison Avenue, where dinner was served. The noted prelates from Europe were guests of honor at this function and were greeted with eloquent addresses delivered by the venerable Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Falconio, Archbishop Farley and others.

Solemn pontifical vespers with Archbishop Falconio presiding and Archbishop Healey of Rochester preaching the sermon, closed the first day of the celebration this evening. Special stress will be laid upon tomorrow's services, at which a solemn pontifical mass will be given in the cathedral for all the Roman Catholic children of the metropolis. This mass will take place at 10 o'clock in the morning. The responses of the mass will be sung by 6,000 of the children of the parochial schools of the diocese, and children will fill the pews of the big cathedral to hear the mass chanted. This mass of thanksgiving for the children will be the only event of tomorrow. The following day the consecration ceremonies will close with religious exercises during the day and a reception at the Catholic Club in the evening in honor of the visiting prelates.

I. C. LOOT $2,000,000,
ACCOUNTANT FIGURES

Expert Makes Careful Review of Books of Accused Car Repairing Company.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The Illinois Central was defrauded to the extent of $2,000,000 on car repairs, according to the figures of expert accountants who have been laboring for the past six months on the car repair records during the four years in which the road was running out its "bad order" rolling stock. The result of the accountants' labor was made public for the first time.

The actual amount said to have been stolen from the railroad by padding and taking bills will perhaps never be known.

E. N. Harding, the expert accountant having charge of the work in cleaning up the car repair accounts, appeared as witness in the graft hearing. His report gives the extent of the alleged graft theft and shows approximately how the loot was divided between the five car repair companies accused of defrauding the railroad company.

Mr. Harding's report shows that the bad order cars of the Illinois Central were farmed out in the following numbers to the accused car repair plants.

Cars.	Company	Amount
Overmann Manufacturing Co.	3,402
Blue Island Car and Equipment company	5,126
American Car and Equipment company	1,054
Memphis Car company	3,334
International Car company	100

Mr. Harding estimated that the average excess charges on each car repaired amounted to about $100, except in the case of the Ostermann Manufacturing company, where the excess charges averaged $120 a car.

THE THEATER

Great interest in coming of Opera. No event of the season has caused so much interest in theatrical circles here as the coming of the Sheehan English Grand Opera company for a performance of Verdi's "Il Trovatore" with the celebrated star cast, Tuesday evening, Oct. 11th, at the Myers.

JOSEPH F. SHEEHAN, AMERICA'S GREATEST TENOR.

Not only here, but from the surrounding cities as well, mail orders and inquiries are pouring in and never before has as much interest been shown in a performance in this city.

This is no doubt due to the fact that wild settings and beautiful electrical effects, the celebrated "prison scene" together with its tuneful melodies have placed "Il Trovatore" in a class by itself.

The engagement here is for one night only, Tuesday, October 11th, and popular prices will prevail in order to give all an opportunity to hear what will without a doubt be the stellar attraction of the season.

"The Flaming Arrow."

"The Flaming Arrow," one of these plays by the popular author, Lincoln J. Carter, exceedingly well conceived and intensely dramatic, is considered one of the best efforts of Mr. Carter, and is being well received by the theatregoers this season. There are "thrills" striking dramatic situations, and pictures that are consistent, bright, clear, natural and full of character. The story of this play is the story of a man's life, the story of the freedom from the "blind and thunder" that pervades the average drama that has a melodramatic atmosphere. This will be the offering at the Myers theatre on Saturday, Oct. 8, matinee and evening.

"The Girl in the Kimono."

After a play has been seen for over one hundred consecutive nights to crowded houses in a city like Chicago, it is scarcely necessary to go into details regarding its position in the theatrical offerings. "The Girl in the Kimono," which will be presented by W. K. Ziegfeld at the Myers theatre, Monday, Oct. 10, comes direct from a triumphal run of this period in the Windy City. The critics of Chicago were united in their opinions of perhaps never before in America has this popular opera been given in English with as many celebrated artists as comprise the all star cast of the Sheehan English Opera company.

Another thing is the great popularity of "Il Trovatore." For over fifty years it has held first place in the affections of the people. The great tower scene, the magnificent "Anvil Chorus" with its picturesque domestic comedy with music and devoted columns to their approval of the play. It is a typical Ziegfeld production and not only includes an excellent cast, but comprises a famous Ziegfeld chorus of "Worthless girls" and the "Dancing Rosebuds." Ten song-hits of the whistley sort are introduced, the most popular of which is, "I Love to Love a Man." The production is carried complete.

ST. PATRICK'S FREE FROM DEBT.

New York Cathedral Consecrated to Uses of Religion.

New York, Oct. 5.—The celebration of high mass at 5 o'clock this morning by Archbishop John M. Farley, head of the archdiocese of New York, was the beginning of a two days' religious festival for the dedication of St. Patrick's Cathedral to the uses of religion, unincumbered by debt. The consecration of the great Catholic place of worship at Fifth avenue and Fifty-first street has brought together an assemblage of prelates only a little less notable than that which marked the recent Eucharistic congress in Montreal. Three cardinals, one of them a papal legate, have their thrones in the chancel, and fifty archbishops and bishops and a thousand priests are taking part in the festival. A part of the celebration is the service in commemoration of the centenary of the birth of Cardinal McCloskey, the first prelate in the United States to be made a cardinal.

One's Range of Thought.
The plowman that turns the clod may be a Cicilianus, or a Washington, or he may be a brother to the clod he turns. It is every way creditable to handle the yardstick and the measuring tape; the only discredit consists in having a soul whose range of thought is as short as the stick and as narrow as the tape.—Horace Mann.

Willing to Make a Bargain.
The naturally religious child, and most children are naturally religious, dies to the heavenly father in and under all trying circumstances. Kathleen, for instance, had lost her dog and was heart-broken. Earnest prayer failed to restore the missing Pido, and the second evening the troubled mother promised, tearfully: "I'm afraid, dear God, that you're vexed with me over something, 'cause you haven't brought my doggie back; but if you'll only send him back to me this evening I'll be such a good little girl tomorrow and all next day!"

THE LOS ANGELES TRAGEDY.

Not since the death of President McKinley at the hands of an assassin, has the nation been so profoundly stirred, as when the news was flashed over the wires that the building owned and occupied by the Los Angeles Times had been dynamited and a score of innocent lives sacrificed.

The enormity of the crime has gathered in significance and today $100,000 is offered for the arrest of the perpetrators of the diabolical deed.

The Los Angeles Times has long been recognized as the best newspaper on the Pacific coast, Metropolitan in every respect it filled completely the field and was patronized and appreciated by a loyal constituency.

Believing in the right of every man to work it advocated fearlessly and consistently the open shop, thereby gaining the ill-will and intense hatred of labor unions and organized labor.

This feeling of antagonism was so pronounced that it resulted in a long and persistent boycott against the paper, conducted by a special agent who was paid a salary of $2,500 a year to see that no stone was left unturned in fighting their antagonist.

Organized labor is very strong in the coast cities and the boycott cost the paper some money, but in the end was a failure, and at the time of the disaster the Times had more friends than at any time in its history.

This, in brief, is a summary of the labor troubles which the management holds responsible for the crime. While strikes and boycotts, picketing and lockouts, have caused many disasters to property and life, the people of the country will be slow to believe that organized labor countenances lawlessness.

The red hand of anarchy is not a working hand. It is directed by a cold, unfeeling brain which is full of envy and hatred. This little band of marauders, represented in all large cities, is destitute of capital and so is classed with labor, and because it employs extreme methods, organized labor is accused of being in sympathy. This is unfortunate, because it is an unjust accusation.

victim marks a victory which calls for rejoicing.
There are times in the history of the nation when the atmosphere is so fraught with unrest that deeds of this kind culminate as a natural sequence. The country is passing through an era of this kind at the present time. This fact was recognized by the Oregon Employers' Association, as will be seen by the following dispatch to President Taft.

"To the President, Washington, D. C.:
"The business interests of the West feel that the present emergency policy is being misunderstood, and is giving the labor agitator an excuse for anarchy. An illustration is shown by the disaster in Los Angeles, etc."

The miners' strike, and the tragedy connected with it, is fresh in the minds of the Oregon Employers' Association, and the feeling prevailed at that time that the public mind was diseased by agitation and appeals to prejudice.

Conditions along this line have not improved and the breach between what is popularly termed "the masses and the classes," has materially widened. This has encouraged the development of socialist ideas and encouraged anarchy to renewed deeds of lawlessness, like the shooting of Mayor Gaynor, and the destruction of the Times building at Los Angeles.

While reforms are always desirable, some of the methods employed are so crude that they keep the public mind in a state of ferment which borders on insanity.

It ought not to be possible in this land of peace and plenty to have a tragedy like the one recently committed at Los Angeles. The black hand and red flag have no place on American soil, and the man who encourages the distasteful methods employed, or sympathizes with the perpetrators, has no right to the protection of American citizenship.

In these days of unusual prosperity we look as a people a sense of appreciation and instead of being a nation of peace-loving people we have become a nation of agitators and the harvest is as certain as it is surprising.

PORTLAND CEMENT.

A few years ago Portland cement was a luxury, but today its use for building purposes is almost universal. Under the stimulus of heavy demand the output has increased many fold and the price has steadily declined from $3.00 a barrel in 1880 to $1.00 in 1909. The Cement Age of this country contains an exhaustive report of this great industry of which the following is an extract.

"The total production of Portland cement in the United States in 1909 as reported to the Geological Survey was 42,508,461 barrels, valued at $50,610,285. As compared with the production of 1908, which was 51,072,612 barrels, valued at $43,547,979, the report for 1909 represents an increase in quantity of 11,435,549 barrels, or 22.57 per cent, and an increase in value of $6,062,306, or 13.66 per cent.
The average price per barrel in 1909, according to the figures reported to the Survey, was therefore a trifle less than 81 cents. This represents the value of the cement in bulk at the mills, including the labor cost of packing, but not the value of the sacks or barrels."

A party of Milwaukee hunters have gone to the north woods to aid John Dietz in holding the fort against the sheriff and the little army which is attempting to capture him, dead or alive. Feeling runs high in Milwaukee and many people around the state are of the opinion that the methods employed to capture Dietz are unwarranted.

Columbia university is all stirred up over the dismissal of Professor Peck, the Latin instructor who has been connected with the school for twenty-two years. Professor Peck is accused of breach of promise by a stenographer, and the scandal resulted in his dismissal. He will test the case in the courts.

The deadly trolley is overshadowing the dangerous road engine. Another tragedy occurred on an Illinois road yesterday when forty lives were sacrificed. This recalls the disaster which occurred in Michigan a week ago, and suggests the futility of careless management and misplaced responsibility.

Nothing but good horsemanship saved Colonel Roosevelt from injury, when his horse was struck by an automobile yesterday. The Colonel seems equal to any emergency.

The efforts of Lord H. B. Hancock to secure a place on the state ticket will be watched with interest by many people who believe that the nomination rightfully belongs to him.

I'm editing the Inlook, a helpful magazine, whose editorial pages are always chaste and clean. It keeps me pretty busy, for editing's no snap; there are no idle hours for the journalist chap. One day I ride a pony across Wyoming's plain and race with joyous cowboys, exulting in the rain, and as the broncho gallops I wield my fountain pen, and write a corking essay to guide my fellowmen. I'm always found attending a banquet every night, and as I eat the victuals I diligently write; one hand is on a pencil, the other on a fork; with one I feed my stomach, with one I feed New York. I make a hundred speeches within a hundred hours, and as I talk I'm writing sage counsel to the powers. I sleep in Pullman coaches, and as I sleep I dream the outline of an essay that sure will be a screed. One day I'm in Chicago, the next in Ahlone, still editing the Inlook, a helpful magazine!

For more than three years a number of the largest and most successful stockraisers in the middle west have been testing a new watering system to several conveniently located drinking troughs—also of concrete. No chance here for typhoid or tubercular germs. If you thoroughly understood this system you would want it installed on your farm. You can make these troughs at odd hours—with a convenient supply of gravel or sand—concrete made from their complete satisfaction. ## Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

WITH VISIONS DOWN.

It was at the day nursery on the state fair grounds.

There were babies galore, besides the kiddies of two, three and four years. The little ones were left with the nurses—for a small fee—to be taken care of while the mothers saw the fair.

As a matter of fact, the day nursery was itself one of the best of the shows. Especially attractive were the young folk, who were able to play about in the yard adjoining the cradle department. There were sand piles and toys and low swinging hammocks and, best of all, grass for toddling feet and tumbling bodies.

The happy little ones at play attracted much attention. I noted particularly the men spectators. Among them were all sorts and conditions—well dressed men, ill dressed, old and young, business men, farmers, horsemen, hostlers, constables, and on every face was the same expression—smiling kindness or tender appreciation.

Of course there were many women onlookers. They gazed on the babies as all women folk look on them—the look of maternal and instinctive fondness which comes into every woman's face when she sees a baby or a little child.

And the women were profuse in their exclamations: "Oh, isn't she cut!" "What a handsome little boy!" etc.

The men said nothing.

The hereditary tendency of masculinity to repress the emotions held them in silence.

But the expression was there—a look of tenderness for something sweet and innocent. As I studied the faces of those men a higher appreciation of my sex came to me. In the heart of every mother's son of them was a tender spot, and the helpless, guileless, winsome youngsters touched that spot and brought out in them what was noblest and best. It was pictured on their faces so that he who ran might read.

Had you intuited as much to one of them he would have said, doubtless: "Oh, nonsense! I just stopped to look at the kids."

But the look was there. And I wish I might have had a photograph of those men's faces with the visions of their helpings down.

Dickens was right. There is a door to every heart. It may be up a yodling stair, but knock and it will open.

"You'll Succeed In Janesville."

Right at present the next big event that will help advertise Janesville and draw hundreds of people to the city, is the Poultry Show to be held in January.
The great "Made in Janesville" week was a tremendous success. Now is a good time to start talking about the coming Poultry Show. Let's help make this the biggest show ever held in southern Wisconsin.
And while you are in the great Janesville humor, keep this new big factory proposition in mind. Plans are progressing rapidly and there will be complete data laid before every "shopper" in Janesville, within a very few days. We need this big institution, we want this factory, we want to see Janesville go ahead, we want more prosperity, we want to have the second city in the state.

Folly of Anticipating Evil.
Never anticipate an evil. The dog does not suffer so much as the man, because he does not feel any pain until the blow that hurts him has been struck, while the man fears that he will be struck, and so suffers twice instead of once. An eastern proverb says: "He is miserable once who meets with ill-fortune, but twice who fears it before it comes."

Body Also Needs Education.
The body requires education in proper exercise to keep its parts in harmony and perfect adjustment. To have a body, to think well, stomach, heart and liver must be performing their functional actions. To have a wholesome soul you must have a right thinking mind, for it is the impulse of the mind that stamps the soul with an everlasting seal.

Secret of Literature.
Literature is the expression of reality; it is the discovery that nothing is common or unclean; it is the revelation of the latent magic and wonder which underlie all things; which, indeed, cause things to be! To the uninitiated and unenlightened eye life seems a pattern of dull and opaque surfaces; art beholds all things as shining, translucent, marvelous. Arthur Machen, in London T. P.'s Weekly.

Quenching New York Thirst.
New York's daily drink of water amounts to 600,000 gallons. A stream 60 feet wide—the width of an average city street—10 feet deep and 22 miles long is pouring into the metropolis every twenty-four hours to feed and bathe its five million daily inhabitants. It is no small task to keep that stream in bounds and give to each family its needed supply without interruption.

Little Known of Cliff-Dwellers.
The history and the habits of the cliff-dwellers is nearly lost in the obscurity of ages. The existing tribes know very little of these ancient, who possibly were co-existent with the children of Israel, and may have been living in stone houses and have enjoyed a real civilization when our ancestors were running about clad in the skins of wild beasts and with caves for habitations.

Bathing in the Antipodes.
Sea bathing in Australia is the main national pastime, even more than in baseball here, and in consequence Australia is turning out not only fine swimmers but some of the finest shaped men and women the world has ever seen since the Greek gods ruled. Sea bathing is good and bully the whole year round in Australia, and is greatly enjoyed by everybody living in any reaching distance of the sea.

Made the Best of It.
When the man discovered the mote in his neighbor's eye, did he make disparaging remarks and spoil everything? No, instead of that he went away and quietly became an oculist, and was thereupon in a position to speak to some purpose. "Ten dollars, please," quoth he, the next time he looked at his neighbor's eye; and that, pray consider, was only the beginning. —Puck.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN

DIETETIC WASTE.

Economy in eating is industrial, getting and using best the most for the expenditure of time and money; and physiological, getting the most nourishment for the least expenditure of vitality and with the production of the greatest efficiency. The former implies knowledge of food values and markets. The latter requires knowledge of the physiology of nutrition and food values. The greatest waste, industrial and physiological, is in the use of excess of protein, supplied chiefly in flesh, eggs, cheese, milk, macaroni and nuts. Excess of protein wastes vitality in elimination, especially in overtaxing the kidneys, leading to Bright's disease, rheumatism and gout, common diseases among the rich, and particularly among the wealthy class in England, who eat excessively of meat. Omission of fat, the best fuel producer, is wasteful, and the excessive use of fine white bread and potatoes, instead of carbohydrates in the more digestible sugar fruits, prunes, bananas, figs, dates and raisins, is a common dietetic error in Europe and America, largely responsible for the high mortality from consumption and from appendicitis and other bowel troubles.

More Hair for Men, Women Children.

The People's Drug Co. Has a Secret and Gives it to the Readers of The Gazette.

To properly treat the hair so that it will grow abundantly and luxuriantly, one should first banish dandruff and stop itching hair and itching scalp. This can easily be done with Parlan Sage, sold by The People's Drug Co., with an absolute guarantee to cure dandruff, to stop all itching hair and itching scalp, or money back.

It cures dandruff by killing the germs, and it kills them so promptly that the most skeptical give it credit. But Parlan Sage is more than a cure for dandruff—it will make hair grow on any head where the hair bulb is not altogether dead.

And we want every reader of the Gazette to know that Parlan Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world. It is so pleasant to use, and its effect is so invigorating that it causes the hair to become lustrous, fascinating and full of life.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

HALF THE unhappiness in the world comes from thinking other people are happy.

That epigram, which I read in Life the other day, appeared to me as one of the best things I have ever run across in that delightful candybox medicine chest of humorscent truths.

But I think it's converse, or is it "opposite"? I'll have to leave that to the geometry students. I guess it's even true.

That is, half the happiness in the world is caused by thinking other people are unhappy.

Perhaps you think that's a very wild statement. I don't, and maybe you won't when I tell you just how I mean it.

Whether they admit it to themselves or not, I thoroughly believe that a very great part of many people's enjoyment of valuable opportunities and possessions is in thinking that not everybody can have them.

In other words, a great deal of the pleasure they receive is founded on other people's envy, which is certainly a very poignant kind of unhappiness.

Why also is it that a pretty model or an attractive style, which the rich madame is delighted with and regards as very beautiful as long as it is hers exclusively, is relegated to limbo as soon as it becomes sufficiently inexpensive for a few other people to have it?

What else is it that makes the possession of a diamond seem infinitely more desirable than the possession of the same imitation, even in the eyes of those who could not probably tell the difference between the two?

How few values are determined by beauty and utility, and not at all by rarity—that is the possibility of general ownership.

Did you ever see any laces half so beautiful as the dew-sparkling cobwebs that you find on the grass of an early morning, and that look as if the fairies had left them there when they fled from their revels at dawn?

Well, just suppose for a moment that these cobwebs could by some process be made indestructible and used as gowns. If that process did not cost much, and this beautiful lace were as free as air, how many rich ladies do you think would wear it? Why, none at all, of course. They'd all prefer their infinitely less beautiful Modlin and old Duchesse laces, just because these were out of reach of most people.

Myself, I confess with shame that when I first obtained a long-cherished desire, and rode horseback, a not inconsiderable part of my pleasure consisted in having the envious glances cast at me that I had so long craved at other people.

Isn't it all absurd?

Can't we also enjoy it and learn to be and admire and strive for things just because we get pleasure out of them, and not because other people can't have them?

COUNTESS DE BEAUFORT.

COUNTESS DE BEAUFORT.

Is Another International Marriage to End in Divorce Court?

New York, N. Y.—In spite of persistent denials on the part of Count Jacques Alexander Albert U. Von Montz de Beaufort, and his American wife, Countess de Beaufort, formerly Miss Kilgallon of Chicago, there is a constantly recurring rumor to the effect that this international marriage which attracted so much attention but a short time ago is, like so many others, to end in the divorce courts. Color is lent the situation by the telegram sent by Count de Beaufort to his wife in Chicago as soon as the newspaper men got after him. The telegram is a puzzle and reads as follows:

"Reporter after me. Look sharp. Have put him off. Hope have stopped story. Be careful. Don't compromise."

It has been ascertained that the Count sails for Europe on the Hamburg American liner Kaiserin Augusta Victoria while his wife remains in Chicago.

Father-in-law Kilgallon yesterday was just as emphatic as Count de Beaufort had been in denying that there was the slightest rumble on the matrimonial seas of the Count and his consort.

"It's preposterous to intimate such a thing," said Mr. Kilgallon, pulling from his pocket a letter from the Count, dated New York, September 27. It was addressed to "Dear Governor" and was signed "Jack."

"That doesn't look like trouble, does it?" he said. "The Countess is in Chicago because she does not like hotel life. The Count is sitting up in an apartment for her in New York and she expects to join him there very soon. The Count is going abroad on business for our firm, but I do not think he will sail on Saturday. When he does to the Countess probably will go with him."

He is happy and care-free. But there is another class about which we hear little whose sufferings are greater and that is the half submerged. People who can neither run along the bank nor sink to a comparative rest at the bottom of the pool.

Those who are too proud to cry out for help, but who are struggling to reach a secure footing on the slippery height. They usually wear an air of doing the work in which they are engaged for pleasure. They walk up the slippery slope with an air of independence which repels any offer of aid and yet—how gladly would they grasp a friendly hand were it held out to them.

It is a favorite story of the writer—the help which drops in at an unexpected moment, from an unexpected quarter, but, for the one person who has experienced that wonderful surprise there are hundreds who work on hopelessly struggling without other recognition or honors.

It is easy to march into battle with things flying and bands shrilling alluringly, but it is terrible to work hopelessly in it's dark and without any incentive save the terrible daily struggle for life.

Far enough up to the slope to see the splendors of the higher shores—deep enough submerged to know that there is a heavy undertow dragging at their feet—it is there half submerged that excites my sympathy.

How shall you know them? Seek and ye shall find! They are at your door if you will but clear the mist from your eyes. They are the silent brave that die fighting, but without glory.

These are the patient and deserving and ambitious poor. They are the mothers who sit up late that the children may be dainty at school, the fathers that work over time to keep the boys in school and send them to college, the children who are at work when they should be studying and playing the old people who have given all to those about them to suffer in, age for—perhaps not bread—but for the joys of life.

In cities and villages and country are these half submerged. Do you and play fairy god-mother. Don't you know that it was the god-mother who had the most fun?

JAPAN CHANGES CRIMINAL CODE.

Commissioner From Mikado's Country Addresses Prison Congress.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Remarkable changes in the penal laws and the prison administration of Japan have occurred since the adoption of the new criminal code in Japan in 1908, according to T. Sunagi, commissioner of the prison bureau of the Japanese department of justice, addressing the International Prison Congress this afternoon. "It seems to us now," said Mr. Sunagi, "as if our old criminal code must have belonged to an entirely different age."

"The new criminal code recognizes fully that the circumstances under which similar crimes are committed differ widely, and that the penalties therefore may properly differ. Moreover, the suspension of imprisonment may occur when the sentence is for not over two years. By the Japanese form of indeterminate sentence a prisoner may obtain his provisional release at the end of one-third of his sentence, and a life prisoner is eligible for ticket-of-leave at the end of ten years of imprisonment. Furthermore, the cases of the aggravation of penalty for repeated offenses have been diminished. The number of persons who commit repeated offenses tends annually to increase."

"In the new Japanese criminal code the age at which responsibility for crime commences has been raised from twelve to fourteen years. By our new code the dread of punishment has been augmented. From the standpoint of criminal policy and in view of the objects and principles of the new code, the results so far have been satisfactory."

"Impressions of the finger prints of all prisoners are obtained and kept in a central identification bureau. There is now segregation of young persons of less than eighteen years apart from older prisoners. Special treatment is given to juvenile delinquents up to the age of eighteen. Juveniles must be incarcerated at least once in two years. Persons afflicted with infectious diseases specified in the contagious disease law may be refused. The unchained hold of deceased prisoners may be given for dissection."

Society Woman a Suicide.

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 5.—Mrs. L. D. Mathes, wife of general manager of Dubuque street car lines and prominent society and club woman, committed suicide by shooting herself through the head. It is said her mind has been giving away recently.

On Coffee and Get Equal Value

You can do this in the same way that hundreds of other Janesville women are doing it. Coffee is not altogether a matter of price.

It's more a matter of suiting your taste than anything else. Women who have been paying 35c and 30c a lb. and are now using GOLDEN BLEND at 28c a lb., are even better satisfied than before. Scientific Coffee blending of today makes it possible to produce a flavor in coffee that is rich, piquant, delightful, and at a price that is within the means of all.

If you have been using a coffee that costs a few cents less, try a pound of Golden Blend and see what a great difference in coffee a few cents in price will make.

More Golden Blend is used in Janesville than any other coffee. More value in coffee is given in Golden Blend than in any other brand. Most people use it because they like it best, regardless of price.

Today order just a trial pound of Golden Blend.

We handle other grades of coffee, some higher and some lower in price, but each is carefully selected and cup tested, and blended and roasted to produce the very best coffee at the price. Our fancy Santos at 20c a lb. and Imperial Blend at 25c a lb. are among our big sellers and our Royal Coffee at 35c is a blend of the finest selected beans. DELIVERIES ANYWHERE BOTH PHONES.

Which One?
Four boys were going along a country highway near Dayton, Ohio, when one found a bottle full of some mixture. It was passed around and tasted of, and the fourth boy, who got a bigger dose than the others, was made so ill that he was in bed for weeks. His father wanted some one to pay the doctor's bill, but couldn't satisfy himself as to who was to blame. Was it the boy that found the bottle, the one that pulled the cork or the one that first tasted and passed the bottle on to the others? Here's a chance to keep you figuring.

IT'S NO LONGER ENOUGH

merely to manufacture a good article. In many cases, through imitation and substitution, a manufacturer has to send a bodyguard along with his goods until they reach the consumer.

Take the case of RUBEROID ROOFING, for instance. RUBEROID ROOFING was put on the market nineteen years ago. It was the best roofing then and is the best roofing now. RUBEROID ROOFING to-day has over three hundred imitators and most of them use the three letters, "oid," at the end of the name of their imitation brand.

You can't get a better reason for putting Ruberooid Roofing—made by The Standard Paint Co., and with the trademark shown here—on your roof. Ruberooid Roofing must be a good deal more than merely a good roofing when a new and unknown company believes that the best way to break into the roofing business is to call itself by the name of its foremost competitor.

Ruberooid Roofing, made by The Standard Paint Co., costs a little more when you buy it, but a great deal less when you use it, than any other roofing made.

The first test of roofing means nothing. The ultimate question is, "How long will it last?"

Another advantage of Ruberooid Roofing is that it is also made in permanent colors of RED and GREEN. The reason Ruberooid colors are permanent is that they are not painted on—they are built into the fabric, and so cannot peel off.

When you go out to buy roofing steel, a clear course through the tangle of imitators, and get RUBEROID ROOFING made by the company who are giving you this information now—with the trade-marks shown here, outside the roll, and stamped on every seven feet of the roll itself. Every other competing roofing was put on the market after RUBEROID ROOFING, and has since trailed it not only in age but in quality.

BUY RIGHT.

"Very well, sir." The mite turned, but Mildred said suddenly:

"Wait! Why don't you talk to her, father?"

"That creature? I have nothing to say to her."

Mildred leaned forward and called to the ship's officer: "Show her up; I will see her."

"Mildred, you mustn't talk to that woman!" her father cried.

"It is very unwise," Marsh chimed in apprehensively. "She isn't the sort of person."

Miss Wayland chilled him with a look and waved the mate away, then sank back into her chair.

"I have talked with her already. I assure you she is not dangerous."

Willis Marsh squirmed uncomfortably in his seat. He fixed his eyes upon the knot of men at the starboard rail.

Then, with a sharp indrawing of his breath, he leaped up and darted down the deck.

Over the side had come Cherry Malotte, accompanied by an Indian girl in shawl and moccasins—a slim, shrinking creature who stood as if bewildered, twisting her hands and staring about with frightened eyes.

Behind them, head and shoulders above the sailors, towered a giant copper-hued breed with a child in his arms.

They saw that Marsh was speaking to the newcomers, but could not distinguish his words. The Indian girl fell back as if terrified. She cried out something in her own tongue, shook her head violently and pointed to her white companion. Marsh's face was livid; he shook a quivering hand in Cherry Malotte's face. It seemed as if he would strike her, but Constantine strode between them, scowling silently down into the smaller man's face, his own visage saturnine and menacing. Marsh retreated a step, chattering excitedly. Then Cherry's voice came clearly to the listeners:

"It is too late now, Mr. Marsh. You may as well face the music."

Followed by the stares of the sailors, she came up the deck toward the old man and his daughter, who had arisen, the tall breed striding noblesse behind. Willis Marsh came with them, his white lips writhing, his face like putty. He made futile detaining gestures at Constantine, and in the silence that suddenly descended upon the ship they heard him whispering:

"What is the meaning of this?" demanded Mr. Wayland.

"I heard you were about to sail, so I came out to see you before."

Marsh broke in hoarsely: "She's a bad woman! She has come here for blackmail!"

"Blackmail!" cried Wayne Wayland. "I thought as much!"

"That's her game. She wants money."

Cherry shrugged her shoulders and showed her white teeth in a smile.

"Mr. Marsh anticipates slightly. You may judge if he is right."

Marsh started to speak, but Mildred Wayland, who had been watching him intently, was before him.

"Who sent you here, miss?"

"No one sent me. If Mr. Marsh will stop his chatter I can make myself understood."

"Don't listen to her."

Cherry turned upon him swiftly.

"You've got to face it, so you may as well keep still."

He fell silent.

"We heard that Mr. Marsh was going away with you, and I came to ask him for enough money to support his child while he is gone."

"His child?" Wayne Wayland turned upon his daughter's fiance with a face of stern surprise. "Willis, tell her she is lying!"

"She's lying!" Marsh repeated obediently, but they saw the truth in his face.

Cherry spoke directly to Miss Wayland now. "I have supported this little won't be bled."

"You marry my sister?" asked Constantine.

"Not!" snarled Willis Marsh. "You can all go to h— and take the child with you."

Without a single warning cry the breed lunged swiftly. The others saw something gleam in his hand. Emerson jumped for him, and the three men went to the deck in a writhing tangle, sending the furniture spinning before them. Mildred heard Hoyd Emerson cry to the sailors:

"Get out of the way! I've got him!"

Then saw him locked in the Indian's arms. They had gained their feet and spun backward, bringing up against the yacht's cabin with a crash of shivering glass. A knife, wrenched from the breed's grasp, went whirling over the side into the sea.

Wayne Wayland looked at his daughter's bold and thrust his way in among the sailors kneeling beside the man he had chosen for his son-in-law. Emerson joined him, then rose quickly, crying:

"Is there a doctor among your party?"

"Dr. Berry! Send for Dr. Berry! He's gone ashore!" exclaimed Mr. Wayland.

"Quick! Somebody fetch Dr. Berry," Hoyd directed.

As the sailors drew apart Mildred Wayne saw a slight that made her grow deathly faint and close her eyes.

Equality.

"Lor' bless you, sir!" said an old caddy, "them as talks about equality don't know nothin' about it! Suppose we was all equal at this here minute; why, we should be just like old Rhodes's cows—a graze; we should all on us get a good feed, and just as we'd done some precious thif or other would quietly drop in and milk us!"

Shifting Gilt.

"Mamma," said clever Jimmy, "didn't you say you would punish any body that took your preserves away?"

"Yes, I did," said mamma. "Who has been taking them away?"

"Nellie has," declared Jimmy, wrathfully. "She's been taking 'em away from me!"—Baltimore American.

"THE FATHER IS HOYD EMERSON."

lover!" He pointed to Chakawana.

"That girl is the child's mother, but his father is Hoyd Emerson!"

"Hoyd Emerson was never in Kalvik until last December," said Cherry.

"The child is three years old."

"It seems I am being discussed," said a voice behind them; Emerson clove his way through the sailors, striding directly to Marsh. "What is the meaning of this?"

Mildred Wayland laid a fluttering hand upon her breast. "I know he would come," she breathed.

Constantine broke his silence for the first time, addressing Mildred directly:

"This baby belongs Mr. Marsh. He says he got it from Chakawana, and he is rich girl." He turned to Marsh.

"What for you lie, eh?" He leaned forward with a frightful scowl. "I tell you long time ago I kill you if you don't marry my sister."

"Now I understand," exclaimed Hoyd. "It was you who stabbed him that night in the cannery."

"Yes, Chakawana tell him what the price any 'bout woman what don't marry. My sister say she go to hell herself and don't care much, but it ain't right for little baby to go to hell too."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Mr. Wayland.

"The Father say if white man take Indian woman and don't marry her she go to hell for thousand year—maybe two, three thousand year. Anyhow, she don't never see Jesus' house. That's bad thing!" The breed shook his head seriously. "Chakawana she's good girl, and she go to church. I give money to the priest, too—plenty money every time—but he says that's no good; she's got to be marry or she'll burn for always with little baby. And so that's make her scare, because little baby ain't do nothing to burn that way. Mr. Marsh he say it's all one lie, and he don't care if little baby go to hell. You hear that? He don't care for little baby."

Constantine's eyes were full of tears as he strove laboriously to voice his religious teachings. He went on with growing agitation:

"Chakawana she's mighty scare' of that bad place, and she ask Mr. Marsh again to marry her, but he beat her. That's when I try to kill him. Maybe Mr. Emerson ain't come so quick Mr. Marsh go to hell himself."

Wayne Wayland turned upon Marsh.

"Why don't you say something?"

"I told you the brat isn't mine!" he cried. "If it isn't Emerson's it's Cherry Malotte's. They want money, but I
